Yatim probe draws chirps on Twitter

André Marin. Provincial ombudsman claims angry tweeter behind online venom is a cop

JESSICA SMITH
jessica.smith@metronews.ca

Ontario Ombudsman André Marin announced Thursday he's investigating issues surrounding the police shooting of Sammy Yatim — apparently raising the ire of an anonymous tweeter whom Marin claims is a cop.

Thursday morning, before a press conference, @joeymayo12 tweeted to Marin, "YOU SIR ARE A DOUCHE BAG! Why don't you stick your big french nose up you're ass instead of business it doesn't belong."

The tweeter later called Marin a "carded member of Al Qaida."

Marin responded by outing him as Durham police Det. Const. Scott Dennis, but he would not say how he identified the tweeter.

Metro determined that the account used to bear the name "Scott Dennis" and the handle @DET3091 — though someone changed the name to "Joe Mayo" and the handle to @joeymayo12 before harassing the ombudsman — by matching tweets sent from archived versions of the account with the two different names.

One of those tweets appears to make light of the Yatim shooting, featuring a cartoon of a bullet saying it was "fired." It was sent with the hashtag #toosoon, a few days after Yatim was killed by Toronto police.

Metro could not confirm if the officer named Scott Dennis — reported on the Sunshine List as earning $102,241 in 2012 — is actually the author of the Twitter account that bore his name, or if it was a parody of that officer.

The account has since been deleted. It contained what appeared to be a play-by-play of the person's workday, including tweets about leaving work earlier than normal, going on lunch break and staring at the computer doing nothing instead of working. The account also includes references to PTSD and being fired.

According to his voice mail, the real Dennis is off work this week.

Durham Regional Deputy Chief Paul Martin said the force is investigating the "disturbing allegations."

"Temperatures run high when you talk about police oversight," Marin said. "In this case it's a little higher than the normal temperature; being accused of being a card-carrying member (of al-Qaida) is a little much. It's part of the turf. I get these from time to time."

Marin said he's received death threats in the past few months, but he refused to elaborate.

Investigation's aims

Marin expounded Thursday on the investigation prompted by Yatim's death.

- Marin said he will investigate the direction provided by the Ministry of Community Safety and Correctional Services to police about de-escalating conflicts.
- He lamented that nothing seems to change, with police shootings followed by coroner's recommendations. "It seems to be like Groundhog Day," he said.
- What, if anything, has happened as a result of those recommendations will be a focus, he said.
- The investigation will adopt the inquiry into the B.C. RCMP Tasering death of Robert Dziekanski as a model, he said.
- Later on Thursday, the Ontario Office of the Chief Coroner announced its inquest into the deaths of Reyal Jardine-Douglas, Sylvia Klibingaitis and Michael Eligon—all of whom were shot by police while carrying edged weapons.

GRIEVING PARENTS SUE FOR $3.5M

The parents of Eva Ravikovich, Ekaterina Evtropva and Vycheslav Ravikovich, talk to the media at their lawyer's office Thursday after filing a $3.5-million lawsuit against the Province of Ontario and the owner-operators of the Vaughan home daycare where the two-year-old died. Evtropva says now she has nothing to live for. Story, page 3.

Parents launch lawsuit against daycare, ministry

$3.5M. Couple's 2-year-old daughter died July 8 at unlicensed daycare

Every day is the same for Ekaterina Evtropova and her husband, Vycheslav Ravikovich. The young couple wake up, and a stark truth reasserts itself: Their two-year-old daughter, Eva, with her big blue eyes and ready smile, is gone.

More than a month after Eva's death at an unlicensed daycare in Vaughan, the toddler's family is suing her care providers and the Ontario Ministry of Education, which oversees child care in the province, for $3.5 million.

"My daughter was everything to me," said Evtropova, 26, speaking in front of a field of microphones and a framed photograph of Eva at a news conference in her lawyer's office on Thursday morning.

"I do not want any other parents to suffer the loss of a child in a situation like this."

The family's statement of claim alleges Eva died due to the negligence of the daycare operators at 343 Yellowood Circle, near Dufferin Street and Langstaff Road, and that the ministry failed to properly respond to complaints about the daycare looking after too many kids. It also alleges the government has fallen short of instituting rules to adequately protect children in unlicensed child-care settings.

A cause of death has yet to be determined, and none of the claims in the family's lawsuit has been proven in court.

Eva's death prompted ongoing York Region police and coroner's investigations, while the daycare remains closed after failing a health and cleanliness inspection.

Metrolinx. LRT mega-deal raises safety concerns, engineers warn

Ontario engineers are adding public-safety concerns to questions about the cost of the Metrolinx mega-contract for the Eglinton-Scarborough Crosstown LRT.

The Consulting Engineers of Ontario, which represents about 200 firms, says public safety, as well as tax dollars, are at stake when a contract becomes so large it squeezes out local companies and provincially certified professionals, who should be overseeing the technical specifications.

The Crosstown stations contract, being handled by Infrastructure Ontario (IO), is estimated to be worth $4 billion, according to the Construction and Design Alliance of Ontario (CDAO). One bidder will be selected to build all the stations and the maintenance centre for the line.

Although IO won't confirm how many construction consortia have expressed an interest in the job, CDAO officials say only two have responded. The lack of competition could add up to $500 million to the cost of the project, CDAO says.

At least one of the consortia is said to be foreign-owned. That can be an issue, said Barry Steinberg of the engineers' association.

"We are concerned about quality. We see ourselves as the guardians of public safety. We have a fiduciary responsibility to public safety through the Professional Engineers Act," he said.

Steinberg added that the size of the contract, which shuts out local firms, means that Ontario tax dollars will ultimately end up going offshore. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Red-light cameras rake in $11 million for the city

Cars zip by at Bayview Avenue and Truman Road, the most lucrative camera site in Toronto. KEITH BEATY/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Eyes on you. Data obtained from cameras pinpoints spots where you might want to rethink breaking the law

Watch out for Wednesday morning: 8:46 a.m., to be exact. That's the time and day you are most likely to be caught by one of Toronto's 77 red-light cameras.

The most likely month? May. The worst intersection? Bayview Avenue and Truman Road.

These conclusions are drawn from 18 months of data on the city's red-light cameras. The information shows that 48,512 tickets have been issued between January 2012 and June 6, 2013, generating more than $11 million in fines.

The camera system has been a moneymaker for Toronto since 2010. The program cleared $2.3 million last year, a leap in revenue of nearly $2 million compared with the previous year.

But Mike Brady, manager of the city's traffic safety unit, said safety is the primary reason behind the program. And it appears to be working.

In 2011, a city study of 37 intersections with red-light cameras showed a dramatic difference in the number of rear-end collisions between sites with cameras and those without.

The statistics — comparing the five-year period before cameras were installed (1995-99) and five years after (2000-05) — found a 1.7 per cent increase in rear-end collisions at intersections with the cameras. But everywhere else in the city, rear-end collisions shot up by 44.6 per cent.

"Speak to a victim of red-light running, someone who was seriously injured for life, and ask them if, relative to all the costs of things in our society today, if (a $325 fine) is a reasonable amount for that offence," Brady said. "I think you'd get a very clear answer from them."

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

See you in court

- The red-light data shows it pays to consider fighting your fine. Nearly one-third — 29 per cent — of all tickets were reduced to less than the set fine of $325 after being challenged.
- But beware: 138 appeals ended up costing the driver more when the judge raised the set fine.

TTC CEO Byford explains Pape closure on YouTube

He's back. TTC CEO Andy Byford has taken to YouTube again with the latest explainer video dedicated to this month's 12-day closure of Pape Station to complete most of the work on the overdue modernization project.

The closure, scheduled for Aug. 19 to 30, was delayed by a labour dispute. It will mean diverting three busy bus routes and having trains skip stopping at Pape.

When Pape reopens, the tiling, ceiling work and new stairs will be complete and most of the hoarding will have been removed, to reveal a new enclosed bus waiting area.

The closure will affect three bus routes:

- The 25 Don Mills bus will use Donlands Avenue and Don Mills Station.
- The 81 Thorncliffe Park bus will travel on Pape and use the Donlands Station via Danforth Avenue.
- The 72 Pape bus will also use Danforth and stop at Chester and Broadview stations. It will then travel north to Mortimer and south on Pape.

Etobicoke seat. Ford wants byelection to replace former councillor Holyday

Mayor Rob Ford wants to call a special council meeting this month at which he hopes colleagues would agree to a byelection to fill former councillor Doug Holyday's vacant Etobicoke seat.

Council has the option of appointing a replacement until the election next year, but Ford dismissed that idea, saying the voters want to elect their representative even temporarily.

Holyday, who served as deputy mayor, was elected to Queen's Park in this month's provincial vote in Etobicoke-Lakeshore to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Laurel Broten.

"I want a byelection," Ford told reporters Thursday. "I don't think anyone wants someone appointed to represent them."

Some councillors favour appointing someone with city hall experience, perhaps a retired politician, who would serve out the term and promise not to run in the Oct. 7, 2014 regular election. An appointment, which has occurred a few times in recent years, would save the estimated $175,000 to $225,000 cost of holding a byelection in Ward 3, Etobicoke Centre.

Subway-platform cost

- Mayor Rob Ford was also asked about the rising cost of installing a second subway platform at Union Station. The latest estimate of $161 million is up from $58 million when the project was rolled out in 2002.
- "If you're quoting back to '02, you could say, yeah, it's over budget," Ford said. "But if you're on with the new specs, it's hard to tell right now. ... I'm getting two different stories, so I'm going to sit down with the TTC and Mr. (Andy) Byford (TTC CEO) next week, hopefully, and get to the bottom of it."

Off the job

Another staffer leaves mayor

Toronto Mayor Rob Ford has lost another staff member — the eighth to resign or be fired since mid-May, when the crack video scandal triggered an exodus from his office.

Carley McNeil, Ford's events coordinator for the past 18 months, no longer works for the mayor, city spokeswoman Wynna Brown confirmed Thursday.

McNeil, who had the title special assistant, left City Hall suddenly on Wednesday. McNeil could not be reached for comment.

Neither Ford's acting spokesman, Amin Massoudi, nor his chief of staff, Earl Provost, responded to requests for comment.

CUSTOMER CHARTER PROMISES ON TRACK; TTC CONTINUES FOCUS ON BUS, STREETCAR RELIABILITY

ANDY BYFORD
CEO
TORONTO TRANSIT COMMISSION

Last week, I reported on the second quarter delivery of our 2013 Customer Charter targets.

In addition to 31 time-bound commitments, the Charter also binds the TTC to delivery of year-on-year improvement in the reliability and punctuality of each of our transit modes (bus, streetcar, subway, para-transit).

Overall, bus punctuality (on time within three minutes) has improved to a score of around three per cent higher than this time last year. That said, some bus routes continue to perform much worse than the average and we are focusing on the poor performers to improve customer satisfaction.

Streetcar punctuality continues to hover around the 70-per-cent target, but is currently below the score achieved this time last year. Work continues to address bunching of vehicles and to drive down the number of consequential short-turns against a backdrop of a very heavy construction season.

The Bloor-Danforth and Sheppard subway lines, and the SRT, are currently outperforming punctuality targets, but the much busier Yonge-University-Spadina line continues to struggle due to a combination of factors, each of which is being tackled with vigour.

As currently measured, punctuality is a rather crude tool so, by the end of this year, we will change to a measure that tracks the difference between the time a journey or trip should take and the time it actually takes from start to finish.

This data will provide much greater transparency of the reliability – as well as the punctuality – of our service, and thereby the customer's actual experience. It will be used to target resources and management attention to drive up performance across all modes to meet or exceed target.

KING AND SPADINA INTERSECTION CLOSED UNTIL AUGUST 20 FOR TTC TRACK WORK

There is no 504 King or 508 Lake Shore streetcar service on King Street, between Church Street and Shaw Avenue, due to TTC track work that has closed the intersection of King and Spadina. Customers can board 504 King or 508 Lake Shore streetcars from Osgoode or Queen stations. In addition, service on the 510 Spadina streetcar line has been replaced by buses. Customers can board replacement buses in the main bus bay at Spadina Station. Construction is scheduled to wrap up by August 20.

NO TTC SUBWAY SERVICE SOUTH OF BLOOR STREET THIS WEEKEND

On Sat., Aug. 10, and Sun., Aug. 11, there will be no TTC subway service on the Yonge-University-Spadina line, south of Bloor Street, from Bloor to St George stations, due to scheduled signal upgrades. The nature of the work involves ongoing signal upgrades and testing, with additional crews conducting platform repairs at Queen, King, St Andrew, Museum and Union stations.

During the closure, subway trains on the University-Spadina line will turn back north at St George Station and all trains on the Yonge line will turn back north at Bloor Station. Frequent shuttle buses will operate every three minutes between St George and Bloor stations. TTC staff will be on hand to offer assistance.

As well, TTC Wheel-Trans buses will be available to accommodate seniors and persons with disabilities who use wheelchairs, scooters and other mobility aids.

Customers attending the Blue Jays game on Saturday are encouraged to use the 510 Spadina replacement buses for access to Rogers Centre, while customers attending the Toronto FC match can take the 511 Bathurst streetcars for access to BMO field.

TASTE OF THE DANFORTH

This weekend, take the TTC to Pilaros Taste of the Danforth. Customers can exit at Broadview, Chester, Pape, and Donlands stations on the Bloor-Danforth line for direct access to the three-day event.

On Saturday and Sunday, take advantage of the TTC's family/group Day Pass. For just $10.75 per day, a group of up to six people (maximum two adults over the age of 19) can enjoy unlimited travel all day.

Free commuter parking on weekends and holidays is available at 13 subway stations right across the system. Park your car and ride the subway.

TTC customers can call 416 393-INFO (4636) or visit www.ttc.ca for more service information and a commuter lot listing.

Airport closed by Israel after Egypt warns of attacks

Eilat. Airport in the Red Sea resort closed briefly because of possible attacks from Egyptian territory

Eilat in Israel borders Egypt. ARIEL SCHALIT/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel briefly prevented landings at an airport in the Red Sea resort of Eilat on Thursday, as Egyptian officials warned of possible rocket attacks coming from its territory on the Sinai Peninsula.

The partial closure was in effect for about two hours before being lifted Thursday evening, said a military spokesman, Lt. Col. Peter Lerner. Lerner said the decision to close the Eilat airport was made as a result of a security assessment, but he did not elaborate.

Eilat, on Israel's southern tip, is a major destination for domestic and international tourists. It is close to the Sinai, where Islamic militants and tribesmen have defied Egyptian security for years.

An Egyptian security official said that the country received intelligence suggesting terrorist groups planned to fire missiles Friday at Israel, as well as at locations in northern Sinai and the Suez Canal. Militants have fired rockets from the Sinai toward Eilat in the past. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least 10 dead in gas explosion

A cat was pulled alive from the ruins of an apartment that collapsed in a huge gas explosion in Rosario, but with 11 people still missing, rescuers tried without success Thursday to find human victims.

"Until we remove the last brick, we'll always expect to find people alive," federal police commissioner Angel Poidomani, leading one of the rescue teams, told Rosario's La Capital newspaper. More than 60 people were injured in the blast. Authorities have identified 10 of those killed and there were conflicting reports about a possible 11th death. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two teens face child-porn charges in Parsons case

Cyberbullying. Father of 17-year-old who took her own life calls arrests 'bittersweet'

HALEY RYAN
Metro in Halifax

Two young men are facing child pornography charges in the case of Rehtaeh Parsons, nearly two years after her parents allege the teen was gang-raped and a photo of the incident was shared on social media.

On Thursday evening, Halifax police held a news conference to announce the charges.

"A young girl … experienced the harsh nature of a world of people wanting to do harm and using social media to do it," said Halifax Regional Police Chief Jean-Michel Blais.

"We hope that today's arrests help the community to heal," added Halifax RCMP Chief Supt. Roland Wells.

The young men, both 18, were arrested at about 8 a.m. on Thursday. One faces two counts of distributing child pornography, and the other, charges of making and distributing child pornography.

Blais said no sexual assault charges will be laid because the Crown advised there was "insufficient evidence" to bring any to court.

Glen Canning, Rehtaeh's father, said it was a "bittersweet" moment when he learned of the arrests.

"On one hand I would want to be very happy and very grateful … on the other hand, it's a bit of a bittersweet moment because Rehtaeh's dead now, and it doesn't really make much of a difference to her," he said.

Rehtaeh, 17, took her own life in April after nearly two years of bullying following an alleged rape at a party when she was 15.

The two teens charged Thursday have been released from custody and will appear in Halifax Youth Court on Aug. 15.

Alberta. Terrifying father-son glacier trip ends with a hug

Raymond Cossette had taken three steps across a snow bridge when it "disappeared" beneath his feet.

The 32-year-old Albertan was six kilometres up a glacier on Mount Robson, an hour northwest of Jasper, Alta., with his father, Robert. The elder Cossette had flown in from Gatineau, Que., for an annual father-son climbing trip.

But now Ray was free-falling down a crevasse, dropping at least 18 metres before the rope tethered to Rob topside began to tighten. When he hit a pack of deep snow roughly 25 metres below, Ray sank up to his neck.

"I was actually relatively calm, I was just waiting for the rope to catch," said Ray. "If (Rob) had given me two or three feet more slack, I would have been buried down there essentially."

Up above, the force of Ray's fall had swept Rob right off his feet. He'd already crossed the snow bridge with no problems, but now was being dragged back toward the hole.

Rob had carefully gone over safety precautions with his son the night before, practising knots until he got them right. He managed to anchor himself and went to work securing knots to stabilize the rope, but he couldn't hear Raymond initially and feared the worst.

"Nobody wants to lose their son … nobody has a death wish," he said.

But Ray had managed to pull his shovel out and went to work digging himself out. Once free, he turned to the ice-climbing equipment in his pack but the frozen walls were too thick to dig into. Instead, Ray used a technique he'd practised by tying a rope to beams in his garage and shimmying up it.

When Ray reached the top, two hours after his fall, his father wrapped him up in a big hug.

The Robson glacier trip was over, but the father-son pair couldn't stay off the mountains for long, teaming up for an "easy summit" on Thursday. On future glacier climbs, they plan to add a third person to the rope.

Harper says pipeline means 'energy security'

Energy East. PM claims project is about more than expanding markets, wants to make sure 'Canadians themselves benefit'

ANDREW VAUGHAN/ THE CANADIAN PRESS

The proposed Energy East Pipeline isn't solely to transport Alberta's crude to world markets, but also to finally provide the East Coast with a large, secure supply of domestic oil, Prime Minister Stephen Harper said Thursday.

Harper was visiting the Irving Oil refinery in Saint John, where he said the TransCanada pipeline would benefit consumers in Atlantic Canada, a region that depends on foreign sources of oil.

"We're not just expanding our markets for our energy projects, which we need to do," said Harper, seated next Premier David Alward and Irving Oil chairman Arthur Irving.

"We are also at the same time making sure that Canadians themselves benefit from those projects and from that gain energy security."

Ex-teacher held in Texas killings

Attack. Four dead, four wounded in shootings at Dallas-area houses; former teacher who was once an army staff sergeant arrested

A former teacher who once moonlighted as a hip-hop dancer entertaining NBA crowds has been arrested in the fatal shooting of four people in two Dallas-area homes, and police said Thursday he used an explosive device in one of the attacks.

Investigators arrested Erbie Bowser, 44, on Wednesday night at the second crime scene, police said. Charges are pending. Bowser once served as a staff sergeant in the U.S. army.

Four youths were also wounded in the attacks, two in each home. Police said the attacks were a domestic incident.

The first shooting took place at a house in southwest Dallas late Wednesday and the second happened about 15 minutes later in DeSoto, about 16 kilometres away, Dallas police said.

Carolyn Webb, a family friend of the victims in the DeSoto house, said those killed included a woman who was divorcing the suspect and the woman's adult daughter. Court records list Bowser as six-foot-seven, 355 pounds.

MLG. Stuckless faces new charges, Crown may seek dangerous-offender status

A man at the centre of a decades-old Toronto sex-abuse scandal is now facing nearly 100 fresh charges, and his lawyer says he could spend the rest of his life in prison if a court decides he is a dangerous offender. Gordon Stuckless, a former usher at Maple Leaf Gardens, was originally convicted in 1997 for sex assaults on 24 boys while he worked at the arena. Lawyer Ari Goldkind said he'd been told by the Crown that a dangerous offender status would be sought if he is convicted.

Tsarnaev's friends formally indicted

Conspiracy charges. If convicted, they face up to 20 years in prison.

Two friends of suspected Boston Marathon bomber Dzhokhar Tsarnaev were formally accused Thursday for allegedly trying to throw away fireworks and other items police say they found in Tsarnaev's dorm room before his capture. Authorities later found some of the items in a New Bedford landfill, the federal indictment says.

Dias Kadyrbayev and Azamat Tazhayakov, both 19 and nationals of Kazakhstan, face charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice. The two, who were in the U.S. attending college and shared an apartment, have been detained since they were charged in a criminal complaint in May.

Both are scheduled for arraignment Tuesday.

Tazhayakov's attorney, Arkady Bukh, said his client did nothing wrong and he's tried for months to convince authorities to drop the case.

"For me, this sounds like a witch hunt," he said. "And this is the same view (my) client has." Kadyrbayev's attorney, Robert Stahl, said his client never knowingly took evidence from Tsarnaev's dorm room.

Tsarnaev, 20, is accused in the April 15 blasts at the Boston Marathon that killed three people and injured more than 260. He was captured April 19 in the Boston suburb of Watertown, after he was found hiding in a dry-docked boat, hours after a shootout with police. He's pleaded not guilty.

The indictment says that night Kadyrbayev put the backpack with the fireworks and jelly in a garbage bag, and tossed the bag in a trash bin outside the apartment. The next morning, they allegedly watched as a garbage truck emptied the bin.

Tsarnaev, Kadyrbayev and Tazhayakov were all students at the University of Massachusetts. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Moscow. Man confesses to Bolshoi Theater attack: Interfax news

The Interfax news agency says the man accused of an acid attack on the artistic director of the Bolshoi Theater has confessed his guilt and requested that the two other defendants be exonerated.

Yuri Zarutsky is accused of accepting money from dancer Pavel Dmitrichenko and carrying out the attack on Sergei Filin. A third man, Andrei Lipatov, is accused of driving Zarutsky to and from the scene of the crime.

Interfax said Zarutsky confessed his guilt in court on Thursday, saying that he initiated the attack.

If tried as "a group acting in collusion," the men face up to 12 years in prison, as opposed to eight if they are tried individually.

"They are trying to break down the 'group' and the 'collusion,'" Filin's lawyer Tatiana Stukalova told Interfax. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Zanzibar, Tanzania. Two British women attacked by acid throwers

Assailants on the East African island of Zanzibar threw acid on two British women volunteers teaching at a primary school on the Tanzanian island, police said Thursday.

The attackers, riding on a small motorcycle, threw the acid on the women's faces and arms as they were walking, said Mkadam Khamis, a police commander on the island. The attack took place Wednesday night in a tourist area of the city.

The women were transferred to Tanzania's commercial capital, Dar es Salaam, for medical treatment.

The attack against the women is at least the third acid attack in Zanzibar since last year.

"We are looking (for) the attackers, and we are expanding our police networks in and outside the country to make sure we apprehend them," said Khamis. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Flying like Iron Man sparks environmental concern

Honolulu. New devices that pump water fast enough to defy gravity can propel riders up to 14 metres into the air

Thrill seekers eager to try the next new water sport are rushing to strap on jetpacks that propel people into the air with the help of pumped water. But the devices are causing requests for regulation in Hawaii, where fishermen, scientists and state officials are questioning their safety and their effects on tropical fish and coral.

Victor Verlage, a 51-year-old corporate executive who used a Jetlev jetpack (operated by the company H2O Water Sports Powered by Seabreeze) while visiting from Mexico, compared it to kite surfing but said it's "10 times better."

"You feel the adrenaline rush," he said.

The devices are starting to show up for recreational rental in San Diego, Key West, Fla., and Cancun, Mexico.

But the state Department of Land and Natural Resources in Hawaii called a public meeting about the jetpacks last month to express alarm about unsafe manoeuvres and environmental impact.

University of Hawaii coral scientist Bob Richmond told officials he was concerned about the noise the devices make, as fish avoid areas that are too loud. He's also worried that fish and coral larvae could get pumped through some of the equipment and die.

The state may find a way to accommodate the jetpacks in selected places but studies need to be done, said William Aila, chairman of the Board of Land and Natural Resources.

Big dig unearths layers of London's history

Crossrail line. Britain's biggest construction project is also largest archeological dig in London for decades

Jewelry, pieces of ships, medieval ice skates, centuries-old skulls — work on a new railway line under the British capital is bringing centuries of buried history to light.

In London's busy business core, archeologists have struck pay dirt, uncovering everything from a chunk of Roman road to dozens of 2,000-year-old horseshoes, some golden 16th-century bling — and the bones of long-dead Londoners.

The 2,000-year history of London goes deep — 5 to 6 metres deep, the distance between today's street level and sidewalks in Roman times. The Crossrail line is providing archeologists with a chance to dig down through those centuries and beyond.

The railway will run across London with a central 21-kilometre section underground. That has meant tunnelling beneath some of the city's oldest, most densely populated sections. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More than 100 archeologists at 40 excavation sites have found everything from mammoth bones dating back 68,000 years to a Tudor manor house, medieval ice skates, an 800-year-old ship and an 18th-century shipyard.

California still dreaming? Climate change impacting forests, animals: Report

Coastal waters off California are getting more acidic. Conifer forests on the lower slopes of the Sierra Nevada mountains have moved to higher elevations over the past half-century.

Climate change is affecting natural resources in California, a report released Thursday by an arm of the California Environmental Protection Agency found. The findings are an update to a 2009 report that documented how a warming California is impacting the environment, wildlife and people.

Among the known impacts: Butterflies in the Central Valley region are emerging from hiding earlier in the spring; glaciers in the Sierra Nevada have shrunk; and spring runoff from snowmelt has declined, affecting Central Valley farmers and hydroelectric plants.

Expect more heat waves, wildfires and higher sea levels as the state warms, the report said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

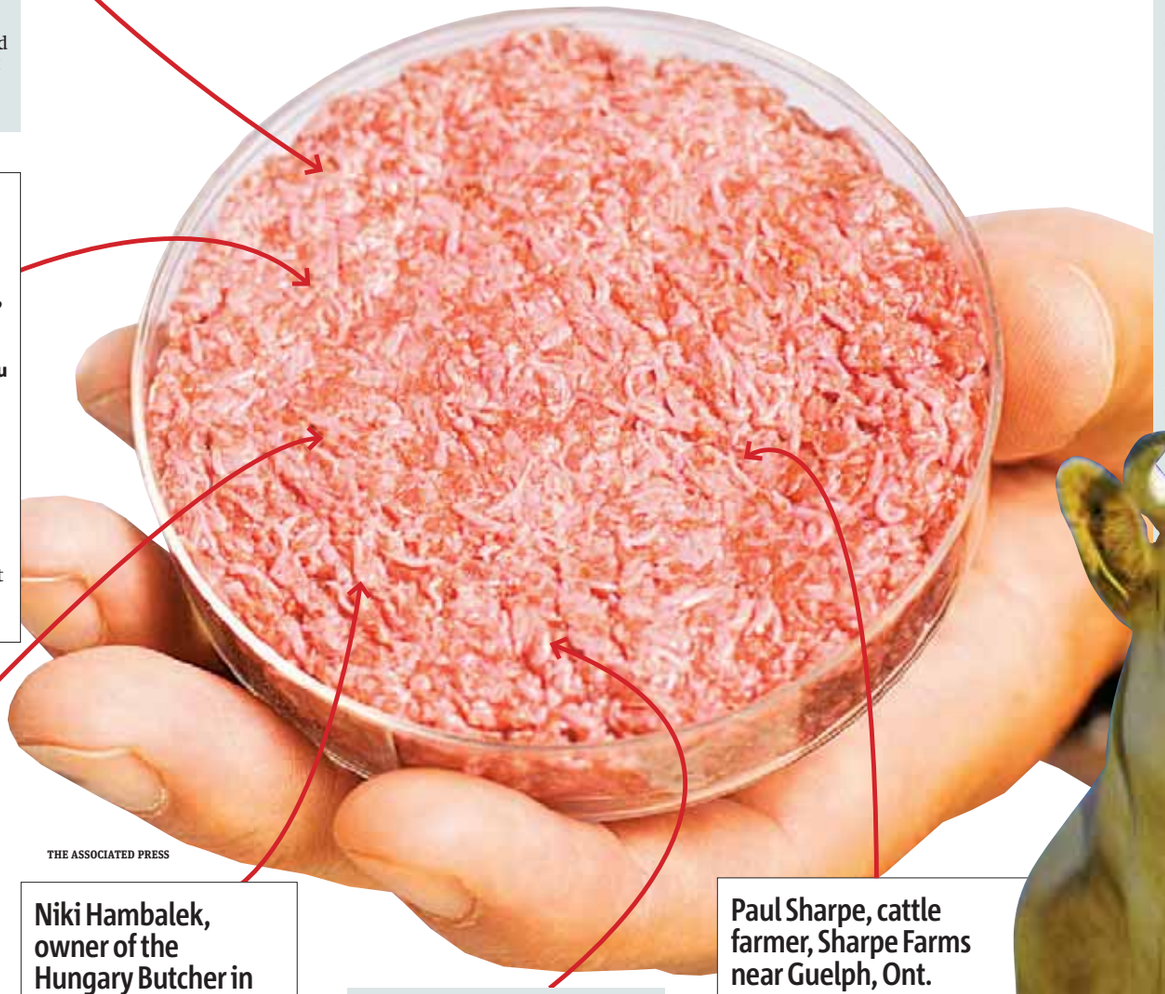
Is this bull?

For some, meat grown from stem cells instead of harvested from animals is an answer to the age-old problem of killing one creature for another's enjoyment. To others, the whole idea just seems ridiculous

METRO IN LONDON, ONT.



THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ingrid Newkirk, president of PETA

Is it meat?
"It is real meat — it's flesh. It's muscle cells, when you're eating it you're eating animal flesh."

Would you eat it?
"I don't need to try it; it doesn't interest me personally. If someone made a bet, (something like) Canada would go vegetarian today to eat it, I'd do it. If it helped to reduce suffering, I'd do it on a bet."

Michael Kuijpers, Vegan Activists of London, Ont.

Is it meat?
"Yes."

Would you eat it?
"I don't think so because it was grown from stem cells.... I support it (though) — any alternative that would help decrease the demand for animal products is a great thing."

Dr. Greg Kelly, biology professor, Western University

Is it meat?
"I'd say it's meat.... You're bathing the cells in growth factors, nutrients, things the cells need to grow."

Would you eat it?
"Sure, why not? I mean I'm not a big fan of veggie burgers, but it's an alternative. It's what you put on it that makes it tasty."

Niki Hambalek, owner of the Hungary Butcher in London, Ont.

Is it meat?
"No. I would call it artificial meat. How could you call it beef? That's lying, right?"

Would you eat it?
"Not at all. I wouldn't even consider it. I don't see any difference in cloning or doing this. How is it going to affect my health in 10 years?"

Vinod Sharma, president of United Hindu Congress of Canada

Is it meat?
"It is not natural-grown food."

Would you eat it?
"Absolutely not.... First of all, Hindu (people) don't eat beef. Secondly, we are totally against any kind of production of artificial meat for human consumption."

Paul Sharpe, cattle farmer, Sharpe Farms near Guelph, Ont.

Is it meat?
"No. Is it very interesting? Yes. It's a topic of conversation, yes, but is it the same thing to me? No."

Would you eat it?
"Sure, I would eat it, and I'm sure it's not going to kill me. I'm not afraid of that. Would I eat it on an ongoing basis? No."

Meat never past its stem-cell-by date

The world is our oyster, er, better yet, meat market

A T. rex steak? A woolly mammoth taco? How about your grouchy old boss served up (quite literally) on a silver platter?

In theory, we could someday be eating it all without hurting anyone or anything — taken straight from stem cells lovingly nurtured in a petri dish and dished up on your dinner table.

Maastricht University in the Netherlands is at the root of what could become a modern food marvel. A team there has unveiled a hamburger (valued at $340,000) that was grown in a lab instead of cut from a cow.

And, experts say, that's only the start of where this could all wind up.

Simply put, if this whole thing shakes out, stem cells from pretty much anything we can get our hands on could be cultivated, grilled and enjoyed — depending on how strong your stomach is, of course.

CRTC turns down Sun News' basic-cable bid

Television. However, telecom regulator says it plans to review rules for news channels

Sun News Network says it will stay on the air while the CRTC reviews the way news channels are regulated in Canada.

The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission on Thursday rejected the network's bid to be carried on basic cable, casting fresh doubts on the future of the controversial upstart broadcaster.

But the CRTC also says it will review the regulations for news channels in Canada.

"The diversity of voices is an essential component of our society, particularly as they relate to news and information in the Canadian broadcasting system," CRTC chairman Jean-Pierre Blais said in a statement.

"Television news channels provide an important public service by ensuring that Canadians are exposed to different opinions and perspectives on matters that concern all citizens. We are concerned that, under the existing rules, Canadian news services are not being given a pride of place in our broadcasting system."

That provides a glimmer of hope for Sun News, which told the CRTC this spring that anything short of mandatory carriage would spell the end of the channel, dubbed Fox News North by some critics when it made its debut in April 2011. THE CANADIAN PRESS

- The regulator also rejected 11 other applications, including Vision TV, Maximum Television Canada, the Canadian Punjabi Network and Starlight: The Canadian Movie Channel, which had the backing of luminaries like David Cronenberg, Denys Arcand and Atom Egoyan.

Road safety. Herzog teams up with AT&T for short film on texting and driving

In his documentaries, Werner Herzog has examined grizzly bears, plane crash survivors, cave paintings and death row inmates. For his latest project, the filmmaker is exploring the dangers of texting while driving in From One Second to the Next, a 35-minute short film that emotionally recounts how lives have been forever changed by the issue.

"I knew I could do it because it has to do with catastrophic events invading a family," said Herzog, 70. "In one second, entire lives are either wiped out or changed forever. That kind of emotional resonance is something that I knew I could cover."

The documentary, which tells the stories of both victims and perpetrators, is available to watch at ItCanWait.com and will be distributed by AT&T to more than 40,000 high schools, as well as hundreds of safety organizations and government agencies.

1 When the dealin's done. Amazon founder Jeff Bezos bought the Washington Post from the Grahams to whom it belonged for 80 years. The sale came as a surprise to many, so when Post Co. CEO Donald E. Graham was asked why he would sell his family business so suddenly, he said, "Look, I'm old. It's a newspaper, and the guy had $250 million." Touché, Donny.

2 Global warming. A new study revealed worrisome statistics from 2012. Rising sea levels and melting ice reached alarming levels. Temperatures were only slightly affected but have been increasing at a rate of about 1.5 C per decade over the last 50 years. In short, I may not have to worry in my lifetime, but we should all probably stop having kids.

3 Shark week. Headlines read "Dead shark found on NYC subway." Firstly, do we need the word 'dead' here? Or is it not enough that in a densely populated city, someone could enter a station with a three-foot-long stinking sea creature, wait for the train, drag it in before the doors close, and place it under a row of seats without anyone noticing?

4 'Sppeling' be. Twelve-year-old Thomas Hurley III misspelled the final Jeopardy! answer 'Emanciptation Proclamation,' which judges deemed unacceptable. The commotion caused by this completely overshadowed the fact that the real winner not only had the answer spelled correctly, but that his record-breaking score of $66,000 meant that Thomas had zero chance of winning anyway. But maybe I'm just 'nipticking.'

5 Grand slam. It was a big week for 38-year-old Alex Rodriguez who returned to baseball this week after his second hip surgery in four years. A-Rod also received a suspension for drug use, which he is appealing on the basis that, at his age and stage of his career, pretty much anything would qualify as "performance-enhancing."

6 Birthday suit. When asked if she was uncomfortable with the nudity and risqué sexuality in playing the role of Linda Lovelace, Amanda Seyfried shrugged and said, "It's a costume really. Just a naked body. We all look the same." Umm, no, but that's why I love Amanda Seyfried.

7 The Bachelorette. If I understand this correctly, Desiree told the final bachelor, "I publicly declared my love for another contestant who told me he didn't feel the same (just last week), and it made me realize I was in love with you all along." Ah, the romantic story we all long to tell our kids, and it's all on video. Cheers!

8 This week in music. In 1975 The Bee Gees hit No. 1 in America with Jive Talkin', which was the group's second U.S. chart-topper on the road to many more. They were also the first known white people to ever use that phrase.

9 Piano in the dark. The Canadian music community suffered a loss this week when James Gray died of a sudden heart attack. James was just 52, and played keyboards for the Rheostatics, Vital Sines, and Blue Rodeo. Among the countless artists who had the pleasure to work with Gray, he will be fondly remembered. His death leaves a gaping hole in the music community. As for me, I thank him for the songs he leaves behind.

Underground station for sale

Brompton Road underground station, now disused, in central London, is up for sale for about $31 million.

The station is near to the historic Brompton Oratory church and the ritzy Harrods department store. It opened in 1906 but turned out to be too close to other stations to attract many passengers, and was closed in 1934.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Once also used by military in WWII

Brompton Road station is being sold by the Ministry of Defence, which bought the building in 1936, when it became an army anti-aircraft headquarters, protecting London from German bombers during the Blitz.

The ministry, which is selling several properties and laying off thousands of soldiers in a cost-cutting drive, says the building has been declared "surplus to requirements" and will be put up for sale next month. The site includes a station building covered in the distinctive oxblood-coloured tiles of London Underground's Piccadilly Line. The ministry said the interior includes "a drill hall, garages, offices and mess," as well as elevator shafts and underground passages — though not the subway tunnels, which remain in use and belong to London's transit operator.

- Brompton Road is one of several abandoned subway stations in London. Many are derelict, although Aldwych station has been preserved as a location for filming period dramas, and the former Hyde Park Corner station building was a restaurant and jazz club until it closed in 2010.

Synopsis

Set in 2154, humanity has split into two sections, the one per cent, who live on an Eden called Elysium that hovers high above Earth, and the 99 per cent who toil on what's left of our planet. The one per cent have it all plus medical care that can cure any ailment. On earth Max (Matt Damon) is an ex-thief who has always dreamed of living in Elysium and is now working a straight job to save enough to buy a ticket. When he's exposed to a lethal dose of radiation he makes a deal with a crime boss (Wagner Moura) who hires him to do a job for a one-way ticket to Elysium. Metro's Liz Brown sits in for Mark Breslin.

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Back to the future?

Elysium. District 9 director's return to the big screen isn't as sci-fi fresh as his debut

Richard: Liz, director Neill Blomkamp's big screen debut, District 9, was a fresh slice of sci-fi with a real beating heart. He brings that same kind of humanity to Elysium, but it doesn't feel quite as fresh this time around. It's exciting, has some great action and ideas and everybody's boyfriend Matt Damon, but for all that, it feels much more standard than I hoped it would be. What did you think?

Liz: Richard, Elysium isn't as fresh because it's District 9 with prettier faces. There's an unfair class system, a guy who undergoes a grotesque transformation and the same dusty shanty towns. I even thought Blomkamp recycled footage from District 9 — the Los Angeles of 2154 looks oddly like the Prawn camp outside Johannesburg. But a shredded Matt Damon is a nice addition to the somewhat tired story.

RC: I should make it clear that I liked most of this movie. I think the setup is interesting, even if it is reminiscent of everything from Oblivion and even WALL-E, and for the first hour it does what great sci-fi should do, comment on the human condition. But then it becomes an ordinary bash-'em and beat-'em action movie with sentimental and mawkish overtones. It's not bad, and, in fact, at times is pretty great, just not as great as I expected.

LB: While the story was meh, for me, the bash-'em-up scenes were great. Watching Matt Damon and a deranged Sharlto Copley tangle in some mortal combat was a lot of fun. I thought Copley — who was the wimpy Wikus in District 9 — really stole the show in his role as a rogue secret service agent.

RC: Copley is entertaining, chewing through the scenery like he hasn't eaten in a week. Damon also impresses. He's believable as both the sensitive guy with a dream and the lethal, half-cyborg warrior capable of opening a can of futuristic whoop ass on everyone in his way. Jodie Foster is nicely cast as the ice cold Donald-Rumsfeld-style villain, but I found her perfect diction really distracting. Every word she says seemed to have its own finely honed shape to the point where I almost had a hard time understanding what she was saying.

LB: Foster wasn't the only one with distracting diction. I found the fast-talk in this film impossible to understand. I'm still not sure of the finer points of the Earthling plan to invade Elysium and maybe Matt Damon missed them too, judging from the way things go terribly wrong. He really got a raw deal didn't he? Only Damon could take on a lethal radiation dose, sketchy Tijuana-style surgery and a few beatings and still save the day.

After narrowly qualifying for the Wings Around the World Rally, Dusty (voice of Dane Cook), a single-propeller crop duster with a fear of heights, recruits the help of retired Navy Corsair Skippy (voice of Stacy Keach) to teach him how to win. Unfortunately the race's reigning champ Ripslinger (Roger Craig Smith) feels threatened by Dusty and conspires to dash his high hopes. Planes plays like an airborne Cars, but has a definite direct-to-DVD feel about it. Drug War

Director. Johnnie To

Stars. Louis Koo, Sun Honglei

Hong Kong auteur Johnnie To brings plenty of flair and a fair bit of bile to this poisonous police procedural, which follows a group of police officers trying to bust up a drug ring. None of the law enforcement work seems especially heroic here, while the world of the dealers is depicted as downright nightmarish. Sun Honglei is excellent as a police captain with a knack for undercover impersonations, but the real star is the dazzling cinematography, which is so fluid and fast that it outpaces even the twist-filled screenplay. ADAM NAYMAN

Drama

Lovelace

Director. Rob Epstein, Jeffrey Friedman

Stars. Amanda Seyfried, Peter Sarsgaard

Amanda Seyfried inhabits the role of '70s porn star Linda Lovelace with aplomb, but the movie is laboured and disappointing. Besides sanitizing the sex trade sequences, directors Rob Epstein and Jeffrey Friedman fail to really say anything about their subject, settling instead for a standard showbiz rise-and-fall structure. Peter Sarsgaard overacts badly as Linda's controlling husband Chuck Traynor, while an unrecognizable Sharon Stone is trolling for an Oscar as her long-suffering suburban-prisoner mom. ADAM NAYMAN

Director. Jamie Meltzer

Stars. Brandon Darby

When Hurricane Katrina ravaged New Orleans, Brandon Darby set to work to help the people of the lower Ninth Ward get their lives back in order. He was an unyielding, anti-government activist. So how did he come to be an FBI informant? This is the question director Jamie Meltzer sets out to answer. The documentary chronologically tracks Darby's life from disillusioned Texas teen to paranoid snitch. Though it lags at points, Darby's story is remarkable — and, depending on who's telling it, wildly different conclusions are possible. REGAN REID

Director. Baltasar Kormakur

Stars. Ólafur Darri Ólafsson, Johann G. Johannsson

In 1984, when a trawler capsized off the south coast of Iceland, there was just one survivor — fisherman Gulli (Ólafur Darri Ólafsson), who swam six hours in freezing cold water to safety. Based on actual events, this movie is a stark but visually compelling retelling of the tale that occasionally feels padded to reach feature length. Luckily the nicely cast Ólafsson carries the story. His stocky frame is physically perfect for the role, but it is his humanity and wonder at his own hypothermia-defying scientific anomaly that shines through. RICHARD CROUSE

Kevin Hart: Let Me Explain

Director. Leslie Small

Stars. Kevin Hart

Few comedians have more than 60 minutes of solid material, so feature films of pure standup are few and far between. To flesh-out Let Me Explain's running time, Kevin Hart, arguably one of the most popular standups going, kicks off the flick with a meandering sketch that shifts into a stat-heavy travelogue of his world tour. Finally getting down to the comedy, Hart performs to a sold-out audience at New York's Madison Square Garden. Hart is, as always, likeable, if not hilarious, but frenetic editing distracts from his performance. IAN GORMELY

Josh Blacker. 'I didn't want to be a lawyer ... I wanted to be a person pretending to be a lawyer,' the Elysium star says

KATE WEBB
Metro in Vancouver

It took Josh Blacker a few years of working as a litigator to realize that law was not nearly as dramatic a career path as he had hoped it would be.

The Vancouver actor, now 40, had pictured himself making passionate, nuanced arguments in front of a judge, but in practise his days in court were rare, and when he did go he found the script he had to follow was boring.

"I think what happened was I watched an episode of L.A. law, and thought, 'That would be fun,' and then realized later on that, in fact, I didn't want to be a lawyer," he told Metro in a recent phone interview from L.A.

"I wanted to be a person pretending to be a lawyer."

In 2004 he packed up and moved from Calgary to Vancouver to pursue his other lifelong dream, acting, which paid off big time when he was cast in Elysium: Oscar-nominated writer/director Neill Blomkamp's blockbuster sci-fi followup to District 9.

Set in the year 2154, two classes of people exist: the very wealthy who live on a pristine man-made space station called Elysium, and the rest, who live on an overpopulated, ruined Earth.

Starring opposite Jodie Foster, Matt Damon, Sharlto Copley, Diego Luna, Brandon Auret, and Alice Braga, Blacker plays Crowe, a South African mercenary sent to protect Elysium.

Blacker happens to have been born and raised in South Africa, so when he found out Blomkamp was casting a South African for the film, he says he felt he was destined to play the part. It is also the type of role in which he was comfortable and experienced, having appeared on a number of Vancouver-shot sci-fi TV shows such as Supernatural and Stargate: Atlantis.

"Most of the time I play some pretty bad dudes," he said. "I've played marines and convicts and mercenaries and occasionally some guy that maybe you're not sure about that lives next door."

Blacker said working with Damon and Foster was a "dream come true" and called his feature film debut the most amazing experience of his career to date.

"He's exactly as you would expect him to be," he said of Damon. "He's grounded and warm as you would expect him to be, and he has a really great sense of humour. He's just a terrific guy and you can understand why he's one of the most bankable stars out there."

Elysium opens in IMAX and theatres nationwide on Aug. 9.

Freak outs, flashbacks and the Lady in Black

SOUND CHECK
Alan Cross
scene@metronews.ca

Expanding your world, three videos at a time

Apple Cares/ Handsome Pixels

You may have seen the video of a woman's freak out caused by her failing to make an appointment at the Genius Bar. Naturally, it's all been remixed into a song.

Ready to Go/ Limp Bizkit Feat. Lil Wayne

Wait, is this 1998? And did we really need that shot of you sitting on a toilet? (NSFW).

Lady in Black/ Haroon and Adil Omar

The first-ever animated feature produced in Pakistan is The Burka Avenger, the story of a ninja-like heroine fighting for the rights of girls to get an education. The Taliban will hate this song from the soundtrack.

Alan Thicke doesn't think his son's song has any links to non-consensual sex. "It's still a guy waiting for permission," he says while talking about the chart-conquering hit Blurred Lines. CONTRIBUTED

Papa Thicke defends Blurred Lines

Alan Thicke wants to clear the air on Blurred Lines, his son Robin's chart-conquering smash hit that has generated plaudits and controversy practically in equal measure.

The single has been criticized for its risqué video — which features the junior Thicke along with collaborators Pharrell Williams and Atlanta rapper T.I. cavorting with topless models — as well as a lyrical refrain that allegedly implies a link to non-consensual sex ("I know you want it").

But the artist's Canadian-reared dad argues that critics are missing the point.

"I think that there are blurred lines within the Blurred Lines," the affable 66-year-old said in a telephone interview from his California home.

"T.I.'s rap is kind of graphic, Robin's point of view I think in his own parts of the song ... is kind of female empowerment when you look at it. It's not so much, 'We know you want it' — it's, 'We hope you want it.' It's still a guy waiting for permission, saying 'I'm not your maker.'" THE CANADIAN PRESS

Alan Thicke quotes:

- "We're not doing the Anthony Weiner story here, (they're) just kind of putting it out there playfully and we'll see who responds."
- "Most of the other videos for years have been about booty. ... For some reason when they switched from booty to boobie, everyone went nuts."

DO YOU USE OPIOID DRUGS?

It amounts to the most epic bathroom break in TV history

Interview. Bryan Cranston on Walter White's future in Breaking Bad's final season and the nature of his character

MEREDITH ENGEL
Metro World News

Breaking Bad returns for its eight final episodes starting Sunday. The long-awaited showdown places Hank Schrader in direct conflict with the villainous hero, Walter White. FRANK OCKENFELS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If you're not caught up on Breaking Bad, you might want to stop reading here. But if you are caught up, you know that last season's cliff-hanging finale ended with DEA agent Hank Schrader picking up some very special reading material while on the toilet — evidence to incriminate his brother-in-law, Walter White, for orchestrating the drug ring Schrader has had his eyes on since the first season.

While you might have been waiting with baited breath to find out what happens when Hank comes out of that bathroom, Bryan Cranston tells Metro he wasn't.

"I didn't ask for the whole year," says Cranston, who has played the series' lead Walter White since 2008.

He says he only got the script about two weeks before the episode began shooting. "I don't need to have a lot of information in my head."

Fans won't have to wait much longer to discover what happens next, as the series returns for its final eight episodes beginning Sunday. Cranston himself was mum about the series finale when we spoke to him last month. But he did share plenty of insight into a series he calls a "cautionary tale," about a man whose hunger for power just couldn't be satiated.

How many people know the ending right now?

Maybe about 20. It's gonna go up to about 200. … There are several things that happen, as you might guess, in the last eight — many twists and turns that you will gasp at.

Why do you think people from all walks of life really connect to this show?

Well, I think because it's honest. We're exploring sociopolitical relationships. Some people were gleaning that, "Oh, this is a condemnation of the medical care system in the United States, because here's a man who is a teacher, and a well educated man, and he cannot provide for his family." … We are telling this story in that manner that is resonating with people because it's not about drug manufacturing or drug usage; this story is about decisions that people make and the slippery slope that (can) happen.

Are you happy with Walt's ending?

I'm very pleased. You know, there was apprehension of reading the last episode because once you read the last episode, there's no more episodes to read — it's just like, whoa, I don't want it to end. But I can honestly say that fans of our show will be very pleased, very satisfied with the outcome. It's very Breaking Bad — unapologetic and very appropriate. We cover it all. I can tell you this: There's not going to be a sense of, "Wait a minute, what?" That's not going to be the case with Breaking Bad.

Lindsay Lohan. ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Did Lindsay Lohan find a star-crossed lover in rehab?

Rehab was apparently a lot more fun for Lindsay Lohan than we previously thought — at least until a fellow Cliffside Malibu patient was reportedly kicked out for inappropriate sexual relations with the actress, according to Radar Online.

Lohan and the mystery man began "dating" shortly after she checked in, another patient claims.

"Prior to Lindsay's arrival I was roommates with the guy who ended up dating her. When she came, the first or second day they ended up kissing and it was on from there," the source says.

"Everybody in rehab knew they were dating. It was pretty obvious. But the guy eventually got kicked out because of Lindsay. The guy who owns Cliffside slacked on the rules for Lindsay, but they got cocky with their relationship and people got uncomfortable with the situation, saying they couldn't do that stuff when people are trying to get well. I know that's why he was asked to leave. They interviewed everyone about it, and all the girls ratted them out because they hated Lindsay."

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Beyoncé, and more celebs who chopped their hair off

The unthinkable has happened. Beyoncé, who pretty much runs the world right now, with her inexplicably voluminous waves flowing in her hip-shaking wake, has gone for the chop. She posted photos to her Instagram today of the bleached-blond do, immediately dividing her five million plus followers. In recognition of this monumental moment, we reflect on other celebrities who have divided the world with their haircut.

Anne Hathaway
The Les Mis star has never had the best luck with public opinion in the first place, but when she cut off her hair for the role of Fantine, things got messy. Alongside the usual haters you actually had Hathaway joining in herself, saying she looked like her "gay brother" and claiming to be "inconsolable."

Emma Watson
Hermione without her signature bushy long hair is almost as shocking as Beyoncé without her iconic locks.

Rihanna
When Rihanna first went for the crop it signalled the end of the Pon de Replay era and the beginning of the provocative singer as we now know her.

Miley Cyrus
What better way to wave her Disney days goodbye than with a bleached pixie cut? The new, punked-up Miley was probably a bit of a surprise to her pre-teen fan base. She's still working on making her image click. METRO

Amanda Bynes.

Drake speaks out on Amanda Bynes' obsession

With Amanda Bynes safely under psychiatric care and off Twitter — for the moment, at least — Drake is finally speaking out about the troubled actress' seeming obsession with him that resulted in a steady barrage of tweets calling him "stunning" one day and "ugly" the next.

"I don't even know who that is doing that or what that's about," Drake tells XXL magazine.

"If that is her, I guess it's a little weird and disturbing. It's obviously a behavioural pattern that is way bigger than me."

With craft beer hotter than you know where, larger producers are caught in a bit of a conundrum. How, after decades of massaging the taste profile of their brands so they appeal to the masses, do they compete with up-starts that are all about in-your-face flavours?

Many have returned to their kettles to take advantage of beer's primary flavouring agent — the often unheralded hop.

Hops are the lady part of the humulus lupulus plant. And while the water or grain source of your fave brew influences its personality, individual hop strains provide the bitter goodness and expressive character.

Alexander Keith's, the one-time Nova Scotia exclusive that's now carried across the country, is proving my point by creating a unique series of ales named for the specific hop used.

Its Cascade Hop Ale (473 ml, $2.55 to $3.49) is a mellow session beer with citrusy overtones and a nice, bitter bite. The Hallertauer Hop Ale (473 ml, $2.55 to $3.49) is lighter with more of a backseat bitterness that lets the malt shine through.

Try both with barbecue fare or hard to match dishes like Indian curries. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

A flurry of sweet treats

Ice cream. Need a fresh way to chill out this summer? How about DIY flurries?

A flurry is simple You start off with ice cream, usually a basic flavour, then you stir or mix or blend all kinds of things into it. It's not a float; no liquid is added. It's like an ice cream sundae, but with the toppings blended instead of piled on top.

Start with a pint of ice cream. Remove the lid and microwave it for about 10 seconds. Test it with a spoon. The ice cream should still be frozen, but should give when pressed with the back of the spoon.

If it's not ready, continue microwaving in 5-second bursts, testing in between.

Now you're ready to mix. You can keep it simple and just use a spoon to mix the ice cream and toppings in a bowl, but where's the fun in that? Ice cream shops often use a stick blender, an item you may not have.

So instead, toss everything into the food processor and pulse a few times.

As for what to use to flavour your flurries? Anything goes.

Just opened: Brussels Bistro

At 1975A Queen St. E. you'll now find Brussels Bistro, a French/Belgian restaurant that serves up bistro-style (shocking, right?) cuisine in the heart of the Beaches area. With an amazing mix of appetizers, mains, and, of course, great wines, Brussels Bistro is one of the new wave of restaurants that's bringing the Beaches back to the top of our minds.

LOT ST.

Just opened: Lot St.

Named after Queen Street's historic nickname, Lot St. just opened this past weekend at 685 Queen St. W. The farm-fresh restaurant is a self-proclaimed celebrator of "the cuisine of our diverse Canadian culture." With Canadiana trends always on the rise, Lot St. is poised to stake a place on our urban landscape.

Just opened: Que Supper Club

One part supper club, one part barbecue haven, one part art/music/event space, Que Supper Club (at 364 Queen St. E.) is certainly a feast for the senses. Que combines our city's love of the nightlife with our love of all things smoked, and we can't see anything wrong with that. It's a unique take on the classic restaurant formula, and we can't wait to check it out.

Opening soon: Momofuku Daisho's Terrace

There's another reason to visit the acclaimed (it's a top contender for enRoute's Best New Restaurants this year) Momofuku Daisho in the Shangri-La Hotel (190 University Ave., third floor). It's getting a terrace. While somewhat late in the season, being able to dine under the sky in style on the haute Asian cuisine that pumps out of the kitchen just makes this joint all the more notable.

The Ex

It's back, and looking like it'll be better than ever. That's right kids of all ages, the Canadian National Exhibition (at, naturally, Exhibition Place) starts Friday Aug. 16 and runs through Sept. 2, bringing with it midways, live entertainment (did someone say the Beach Boys?), rides, carnival fun, and, of course, deep-fried goods galore (look out for the Cronut Burger).

Crave NIGHT TO

CraveTO Day & Night

On Saturday, Aug. 17 in Mirvish Village (the lot in between buildings at 581 Bloor St. W.), join hundreds (and maybe even thousands) of foodies for the second CraveTO event: Day and Night. Not surprisingly, you'll have the option of snatching tix for either time slot, and sampling the goods of some of the city's top food vendors while listening to live music and partaking in "the sauce."

Pospisil closing in on tennis giants

Men's Rogers Cup. B.C. native pulls off an upset as Brit Andy Murray falls in straight-sets shocker

Vasek Pospisil and Milos Raonic will play in the quarter-finals of the men's Rogers Cup.

Pospisil was overcome with emotion after he came out on top of a tight match with fifth-seeded Tomas Berdych to win 7-5, 2-6, 7-6 (5) before a roaring crowd of supporters on Thursday at the $3.49-million US tournament.

Raonic, meanwhile, didn't even break a smile after a 7-5, 6-4 win over sixth-seeded Juan Martin Del Potro, the Argentine veteran who was coming off a victory last week in Washington.

The hard-serving Raonic received courtside treatment on an apparent right-arm ailment while leading 2-1 in the first set, but finished the match even as he winced while hitting some serves.

After Berdych hit wide on match point, the 23-year-old Pospisil flung his hat on the ground and held his head in happy disbelief.

"That was the best match in terms of atmosphere at the end that I've ever played," Pospisil said.

In Friday's quarter-finals, Pospisil will face Nikolay Davydenko, who downed fellow Russian Alex Bogomolov Jr. 6-4, 6-3.

"If I can keep playing the way I am now, at least I'll give myself an opportunity," Pospisil said.

It was the Vernon, B.C., native's first career win over an opponent ranked in the top 10.

Raonic, of Thornhill, Ont., will take on Latvia's Ernests Gulbis in the quarters after he upset Wimbledon champion Andy Murray 6-4, 6-3.

Murray went down to a shocking 6-4, 6-3 defeat at the hands of Gulbis, whom Murray had beaten in all five of their previous meetings.

On centre court, fourth-seeded Rafael Nadal improved to 45-3 this year — best on the ATP Tour — with a 7-6 (6), 6-4 victory over 15th-seeded Jerzy Janowicz on Thursday.

Serena slides into quarters, Bartoli hurt

Wimbledon champion Marion Bartoli wanted to build on her recent success at this week's Rogers Cup. Instead she's leaving the tournament early and her immediate playing future is uncertain.

Bartoli retired early in the second set of her third-round match against Slovakia's Magdalena Rybarikova due to an abdominal injury.

Bartoli said her doctor and physiotherapist initially described the problem as an "overload."

"Kind of excess of tiredness and exhaustion on my body they feel," she said. "But it's so large, the pain is so large and we can't really say right now exactly (if) there is a tear at some point or if it's just like a huge tightness."

Rybarikova led 7-6 (5), 1-0 when the seventh seed from France stopped the match.

Top-seeded Serena Williams had little trouble in her third-round match Thursday under sunny skies at Toronto's Rexall Centre, dispatching No. 13 Kirsten Flipkens of Belgium 6-0, 6-3.

"She wasn't able to play her game as much as she wanted to," Williams said. "When you play such a high-ranked player, you have to go in there with the mindset of do the best you can before they can step all over you and do well."

Third-seeded Agnieszka Radwanska of Poland also advanced to the quarter-finals with a 6-1, 7-6 (2) win over American Sloane Stephens. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Late bloomer Hearn 1 stroke off lead at Oak Hill

CHARLIE RIEDEL/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

David Hearn huddled with Mike Weir at the Canadian Open about learning from near-misses.

Weir, the 2003 Masters champion, is now 43 and settling in as a mentor to his younger countrymen. Hearn may be just coming into his own as a pro golfer at age 34.

Less than a month after losing in a playoff at the John Deere Classic for his best finish on the PGA Tour, Hearn shot a 4-under 66 on Thursday in the first round of the PGA Championship. That put him a stroke off the lead, tied with Lee Westwood behind Jim Furyk and Adam Scott.

The last time the PGA was played at Oak Hill 10 years ago, Weir was coming off his Masters title and was in contention heading into Sunday. The course is about 2 1/2 hours east of Hearn's hometown of Brantford, Ont. — best known as the hometown of Wayne Gretzky, who has also imparted athletic advice to Hearn.

Hearn lost in a three-man playoff July 14 to 19-year-old Jordan Spieth, the youngest winner on the PGA Tour in more than eight decades. Hearn was not that sort of prodigy. He played on the Web.com Tour from 2006-10.

Hearn describes himself as a patient golfer, a trait that has served him well in the bigger picture.

"My career has always had a certain progression, and I've always found a way to get competitive at the next level that I've been to," he said. "For me right now, it's just a matter of trying to continue that on, and as I've been on the PGA Tour for a few years now, I've gotten better at playing well in the bigger events." Leading the pack

Even with a bogey on the final hole, Jim Furyk seized the clubhouse lead with a 5-under 65 Thursday before storms halted the opening round at Oak Hill for more. Masters champion Adam Scott joined Furyk at the top when play resumed.

- Tiger Woods made a mess of his final hole, finishing with a double bogey and a disappointing 71.

‘The Trade’ gave NHL credibility: Bettman

Southern exposure. Ripple effects still being felt 25 years after Gretzky was sent to L.A. from Edmonton

Hockey fans of a certain age tend to remember where they were on Aug. 9, 1988, when the Edmonton Oilers traded Wayne Gretzky to the Los Angeles Kings.

NHL commissioner Gary Bettman was working for the NBA 25 years ago and doesn’t recall exactly where he was. His most vivid memory came a couple of weeks later when he saw the Aug. 22 Sports Illustrated cover that featured Gretzky and Los Angeles Lakers star Magic Johnson.

“(I) Remember thinking at the time that that demonstrated a huge step forward for hockey and its credibility,” Bettman told The Canadian Press on Thursday. “It was obviously something that, in the annals of sports, was one of those seminal events that gets a tremendous amount of attention because of its import and impact.”

Sports Illustrated’s cover read, “Great move, Gretzky.” At the expense of the Oilers and their fans, it also turned out to be a great move for hockey in the United States, which benefited from expansion and an infusion of players at the youth level.

“People paid attention to hockey in places where they might not have focused on it as much, and it was clear there was a great deal of interest in the game,” Bettman said. “Wayne’s presence in L.A. was the catalyst for that.”

When Gretzky arrived in Los Angeles, The Forum wasn’t a loud or intimidating place to play. Sellouts and celebrity appearances became the norm, thanks to the NHL’s biggest star.

Not long after, Gretzky’s impact was felt beyond Los Angeles. The league added a second California team in 1991 with the expansion San Jose Sharks and a third in 1993 with the Anaheim Mighty Ducks.

Bettman became commissioner before the Mighty Ducks and Florida Panthers debuted and the Minnesota North Stars moved to Dallas and in the midst of the Tampa Bay Lightning’s first season. The league’s expansion across the Sunbelt continued under Bettman’s watch, thanks to Gretzky.

“It was the reaction of people to the game,” Bettman said of the cause and effect. “Wayne’s presence in L.A. and the success the Kings had demonstrated that hockey had credibility in so-called newer or non-traditional markets.”

Plenty of potential owners interested in Devils: Source

A person familiar with the negotiations says several groups are vying to buy the financially strapped New Jersey Devils, and a deal should be completed by the start of the NHL season.

The source spoke to The Associated Press Thursday and requested anonymity because the negotiations between Devils owner Jeff Vanderbeek and the groups are still active.

Philadelphia 76ers owner Josh Harris heads one group trying to buy the three-time Stanley Cup champions and Calgary billionaire Bill Gallacher is another, although the source said multiple groups are bidding on the team.

Sochi anti-gay law

Russian sports minister tells critics to relax

Urging critics of Russia’s new anti-gay law to “calm down,” the country’s sports minister said Thursday that the rights of all athletes competing at next year’s Winter Olympics in Sochi will be respected.

Sports Minister Vitaly Mutko did insist that athletes would “have to respect the laws of the country” during the Feb. 7-23 Games.

The law, signed by President Vladimir Putin in June, bans “propaganda of nontraditional sexual relations” and imposes fines on those holding gay pride rallies.

Mutko said the chase for medals should be the athletes’ primary concern.

OHL. Gilmour hopes trading son proves to be mistake

Doug Gilmour hopes it turns out to be the worst trade he’ll ever make.

Gilmour, the general manager of the OHL’s Kingston Frontenacs, drafted his son Jake just one year ago in what had to be a touching moment between father and son.

But on Wednesday, the elder Gilmour dealt his 16-year-old son’s rights to the Niagara IceDogs.

“It looks like it’s going to be a bad deal for the Frontenacs, and I have no problem with that,” Gilmour said about trading Jake, goalie Blake Richard and a conditional 12th-round draft pick in 2015 for Niagara’s 12th-round pick in 2015.

“I gave him up for what people might say is a trade that doesn’t look like much, but if Jake develops the way I think he will, then he’s going to be a good player in this league.

“If he develops the way we think he can, then it’s good for everyone.”

The move drew plenty of wisecracks on Twitter, and media all over Canada. But as Kingston’s GM, Gilmour has a job to do. He’s entrusted with bringing a championship to his hometown, and for the past two years, he’s positioned himself to take an earnest run at the league title and ice a contender in Kingston.

The team is deeper at the forward position than the IceDogs, which means Jake, who plays on the wing, should have a better chance at making the IceDogs next season.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
Do something that upsets those who don't like it when changes have to be made. Just because others have settled into a safe rhythm does not mean you have to as well.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
If there is something you want, just take it. Be aware, however, that when you take from others it gives them the right to take from you in return.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
Self-doubt may be alien to you but there will be times over the next couple of days when you begin to wonder if you are doing something the wrong way. Maybe you are. Even a Leo gets it wrong sometimes.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Do something today that reminds those around you how dangerous it can be to take you for granted. You don't have to make it shocking or outrageous but, on the other hand, there's no reason why you should not!

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Pick a side and join in some kind of battle today. Does that thought fill you with fear? It shouldn't. The only people who have cause to be alarmed are those who find themselves on the opposite side to you.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Saturn in your sign is pushing you to your limits but that's OK because you enjoy being tested. Decide on a course of action over the next 24 hours and stick to it.

♐ Sagittarius

The best way to deal with criticism is to ignore it. Someone will say something today that is neither true nor fair but so what? Your ego is tough enough to take it.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
You will be faced with a situation that makes you angry today but don't let it get out of hand. Before you lose your temper try asking yourself who is most likely to get hurt by it: your rival or you?

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
There are times when it's OK to be selfish and this is one of them. The more other people try to move you in a certain direction, the more you must insist on going some other way, just to annoy them.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
You are under divine protection and don't need to worry about the day's events or what the future may bring. Do what feels right. One way or another it will work out. SALLY BROMPTON
